Both Sides Claim Demands are Extravagant and Impossible

SETTLEMENT DISTANT

Arbiters Claim Period of Whittling of Plans May Bring Satisfaction.

London, Dec. 27.—The peace envoys, both of the Balkan states and of Turkey, have adopted the attitude of intractability, which was anticipated, toward their opponents' proposed terms of settlement.

Each side declares that the others demands are preposterous. Third parties, who are in touch with both groups of negotiators, share this opinion and intimate that a period of whittling is necessary to transform the proposals and counter-proposals into such shape as will enable the peace conference, assisted by the friendly pressure of the powers, to strike a bargain.

This, it is thought, will occur in due time. As a matter of fact, the proposal of the Balkan allies by which they would come into possession of the coast of the sea of Marmora is regarded as quite as impossible of achievement as is the Turkish demand that the Ottoman Empire be allowed to maintain a sovereignty over the coast of the Aegean sea, including the city of Saloniki.

BAD MONEY OF MORELLO GANG IN USE

Washington, Dec. 27.—A United States secret service operative left Washington today for Clarkburg, Va., to take charge of two alleged Italian counterfeiters held by the police there. Salvatore Morello and Fortunello Lobello are charged with having in their possession and passing $2 counterfeit notes made by the famous Morello Lupello gang, the leaders of which are now serving long terms in the penitentiary. Occasionally some of these notes turn up in circulation, indicating to the officials that there was a plant somewhere that was not seized in the raid several years ago.

NATIVES ON PAPUA ISLE MASSACRED

Sidney, N. S. W., Dec. 27.—News of the massacre of men, women and children composing virtually the entire population of a native village on the island of Papua has been received at Port Moresby, British New Guinea, according to a message received here today. The village is some distance from the capital of the island and the massacre took place while Lemna natives were passing through it en route to their own settlement. Terrible cruelties are reported.

BRISON SMASHED MIRRORS IN SHOP

George Brison, fugitive, indicted in the local common pleas court and wanted in Zanesville, was taken into custody Thursday night by Patrolman Burke and Wagonman McCune and lodged at the city prison on a charge of being drunk, destroying property and resisting an officer.

Brison engaged in an altercation in the barber shop and saloon of Frank Northey of Oakwood avenue and proceeded to wreck the place. In the barber shop he smashed the mirrors and other furnishings and reduced one barber chair to kindling wood. He is also charged with stealing several razors, one of which was found on his person.

The officers arrived as Brison was preparing to wreck the saloon and they nabbed him before he knew they were in the vicinity of the saloon. After leaving the saloon with the cops he broke away but fell in the mud with Patrolman Burke on top of him. After a brief session with the officer, Brison was willing to submit to arrest. More than a year ago, Brison was arrested for Zanesville but before the officers from that city arrived, he had escaped from the city prison. He is also under indictment in the common pleas court here.

In police court Brison pleaded guilty to the charge and waived examination. He was bound over to the grand jury under bond in the sum of $300. As the property destroyed was valued at more than $100, the offense is punishable by a penitentiary sentence if he is convicted.

TROUBLE OVER ERECTION OF THE LYON TABERNACLE

Cleveland, O., Dec. 27.—The Cleveland Federation of Labor has declared war on the big Tabernacle building being built at Franklin avenue and West Fifty-eighth street, where union revival services are to be held, in charge of Evangelist Milford Lyon, of Chicago. Members not only declared they would boycott the services supported by Associated West Side churches by staying away because non-union men were employed on the job, but that more trouble would result if the contractors attempted to hire union electrical workers and gas fitters to finish up the building.

NO SALARIES; COUNTY FUND IS EXHAUSTED

Until after March 1, 1913, the county officers of Licking county must go broke, or at least they must figure on continuing business without the aid of salaries, for the county fund out of which their salaries come is exhausted and County Auditor Riley will issue no more orders until March 1 of the coming year.

Under the law passed by the last general assembly it is impossible to over-draw the fund and for that reason the county officers must go without their usual salaries until the first of March when the settlement for the fiscal year is made.

While the county officers are wearing sheepskin grins and bearing an unmerciful "kidding" on the subject of how they will pay for Christmas presents, the "hired help" about the court house is manifesting a huge enjoyment of the situation, for the salaries of the office employees come from the fee funds of the various officers and not from the now defunct county fund.

Not only will the tightening of the money market affect the county officers, but it will make it necessary for the janitors of the court house to work with a bare fist for the future.

Stamps, paper, pencils and in fact all the supplies necessary for the county offices will have to be bought on "tick" and even the electric light bill will go unpaid until March 1 for out of the county fund comes all supplies.

"It's hard luck," said one of the county officers this morning, "but I'm glad it came after Christmas instead of before."

CLAIM MISTAKE MADE IN OHIO'S VOTE FOR WILSON

A discovery has been made in the office of Secretary of State Graves at Columbus, of an error in the Ohio vote for Woodrow Wilson for president of 1912 more votes than he actually received. The mistake is said to have been caused by an error in the returns from Licking county.

Clerk Michael Sechs of the board of deputy supervisors, Friday afternoon stated to the Advocate, when his attention was called to the matter, that he had been in Columbus Thursday and called the secretary of state's attention to an error made in carrying the totals in the recapitulation of the Licking county vote on the back of the abstract. He said the correct vote was in the abstract and the secretary of state found it so when the returns were sent from this county.

ALL REPORT LARGE CHRISTMAS SALES

"Much better than we expected," was the general expression of Newark merchants this morning of their satisfaction in the Christmas shopping season. None of the merchants was the least pessimistic regarding the outlook for a prosperous and happy year. Each told a story of a season of shopping that will net many hundreds of dollars for local stores. It is estimated that fully $25,000 was spent in the larger stores of the city during the first two days of Christmas week, the comparatively inclement weather preventing earlier shopping among the Christmas buyers.

Compared with last year's business, merchants state that the total during the entire season will no doubt run considerably higher, and that the totals of expenditures by late shoppers will nearly double that of the final two days before Christmas last year.

SING SING REFUGEE CAUGHT OUT WEST

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 27.—A man known to be Bill Green, a convict, who engineered a successful escape from Sing Sing prison October 16, 1910, is in jail here. He was arrested as a vagrant.

WELCOME AWAITS WILSON

Staunton, Va., Ready With Elaborate Preparations for Native Son

WILL ARRIVE TONIGHT

The President-Elect Gives Views on Money Reform—Has Recovered from the Grip.

Staunton, Va., Dec. 27.—A great arch with the words "Welcome home" outlined in incandescent bulbs forms the gateway through which the people of Staunton will welcome home tonight their distinguished native son, President-elect Woodrow Wilson. Preparations have been under way for nearly two weeks to make the home-coming a great Virginia occasion and were completed early today.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 27.—Propped up in bed, President-elect Woodrow Wilson sat for two hours yesterday afternoon talking about currency reform with Representative Carter Glass of Virginia, chairman of the house sub-committee on banking and currency reform, and Dr. H. P. Willis, a New York financial writer.

"The conference concerned generalities," said Mr. Glass afterwards. "The governor has some positive ideas about currency reform and expresses them more decisively and clearly than anyone I have ever met."

Mr. Glass said he was not at liberty to disclose what was discussed in the conference. "That's what we talked about," he said, as he exhibited, with a smile, a handful of $5 gold pieces. He remarked, however, that none of the bills supposed to be before his committee in Congress was authentic and that the committee had not yet drafted any measure. He added that public hearings would be begun on January 7.

The governor had almost entirely recovered last night from his attack of grip, but in compliance with the physician's orders he remained in bed and saw no one but Messrs. Glass and Willis. He left at 10:30 this morning for Staunton, Va., his birthplace, there to celebrate with the townsfolk his fifty-sixth birthday Saturday. The train will reach Washington at 3:15 p. m. and will be there for 15 minutes, while the two special cars carrying the governor and a party of Virginia friends in New York, who will accompany him, will be switched from the Pennsylvania railroad to the Chesapeake and Ohio. It will be the first time, however, that the president-elect will have stopped in the national capital since the election.

A coincidence of the journey is that Richard R. Taylor, one of the secret service men detailed with the governor since the election, also hails from Staunton, from which place, as a boy, he ran away to sea and won a medal of honor from Congress for safely navigating an American war vessel and saving it from destruction in a hurricane off the Samoan Islands in 1889.

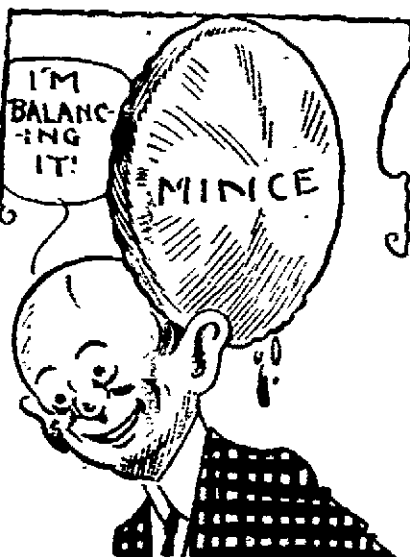

Mrs. Wilson will go with the President-elect. She said last night that while his health had improved she had thought it a bit risky for him to make the trip to Staunton on account of the cold weather.

Dr. J. M. Carnochan, the family physician, saw the governor for a few minutes early in the day, but did not think another visit necessary. It is unlikely that the governor will make any more automobile trips to and from Trenton in the cold weather, though his indisposition is believed to be as much the result of quick change from the warm Bermuda climate to frigid latitudes as to exposure. His digestion has not been of the best either since his return and, coupled with the effect of his long hours at the statehouse, it was feared at first that he was on the road to a severe breakdown.

REBELS ADOPT BALLOON CODE FOR MESSAGES

El Paso, Dec. 27.—Toy balloons are being employed by the rebels in northern Mexico as a system of "wireless" to give information regarding the movement of federal soldiers. Every time a troop train departs from Chihuahua a toy balloon floats up from the center of the state capitol. A relay of the simple signal tells the rebels that troops are coming. Destruction of railways has made the telegraph uncertain and as the rebels do not employ wireless telegraph the rebel advice is in many instances ahead of the federal's information.

SON'S OF THE REVOLUTION, PLEASE NOTE

Paulding, O., Dec. 27.—Hugging the shaft tightly to prevent his brains from being dashed out on the floor below, with his clothes caught on a set screw on a shaft in his father's flour mill, Homer Bickhart, 20, was hurled about the shaft for five minutes at 50 revolutions a minute. His mother, in her home adjoining the mill, heard the boy's cries and notified her husband, who stopped the machinery. The boy dropped to the floor unconscious but soon revived. His clothing was torn, but he suffered no physical injury.

TURKS WILL TAKE UP FARMS IN ASIA MINOR

Washington, Dec. 27.—The exodus of the Turks from Europe virtually has begun, according to a letter received by the American Red Cross. The letter says that the Red Cross already has aided more than 100,000 Turkish refugees to leave Europe and take up agriculture in Asia Minor. The farms across the Bosphorus are provided free by the Ottoman government.

BASKETBALL GAME CAUSES BOY'S DEATH

Canton, Dec. 27.—Clermont A. Flickinger, senior in the Canton High school, and captain of the basketball team, was probably fatally injured in a game here last night. Flickinger was pushed against the wall and tumbled in a heap, saying, "Fellows, I'm paralyzed." He was taken to a hospital and remained conscious most of the night. This morning, however, he lapsed into unconsciousness and physicians said that he could not survive the day.

BRITISH STEAMER BROUGHT TO SAFETY

Washington, Dec. 2.—After a perilous fight in a heavy sea, the revenue cutter Seminole today towed the abandoned British steamer Abazar onto Lookout Light. The revenue cutter broke its steering gear.

AUTO DRIVER ORDERED UP FOR SPEEDING

Charged with recklessly driving an automobile, M. Marion of 135 Levoe street, a taxicab driver, was ordered to appear before Mayor Smart Friday afternoon. The prosecuting witnesses are Walter Sauer and O. G. Price. It is claimed that Marion rounded the corner near the Warden Hotel last night at a high rate of speed, narrowly missing Sauer and Price, who were crossing the street. Though he was said to be exceeding the speed limit, he failed to heed the calls of Price and continued on his way east. His identity was established by the number on his machine.

An unmarried woman is not necessarily one who has been married and divorced.

ON THE SIDE OF THE SUCCESSFUL.
[By Chalmers L. Parsons.]
It is human nature for the people of the world to love to be on the side of the successful. If the majority of men in any city are successful in building up they at once obtain the sympathy and support of all those whose support is worth having. That is why "Knockers" soon learn that there is no room for them and in time they bring about their own demise. Those non-citizens who seem to find delight in pulling down, are enemies of a good town. Treat them with contempt—ignore their idle prattle.

MARRIAGE MAY FOLLOW TRAGEDY IF MISS BUKSAR RECOVERS FROM INJURIES

The condition of Annie Buksar, who is in the city hospital with a bullet wound in her body, continues to be extremely critical. There was practically no change in her condition since Thursday afternoon.

That Annie Buksar and Alec Haynal, her companion the day she was shot down by Anton Vorseck, expected to be married is indicated by development in the story today.

Although Miss Buksar had seen young man but twice she intimated to her mother the day of the tragedy that she might marry him. She asked her mother's permission to have her photograph taken with Haynal and it was granted.

When asked by her mother if she intended to marry Haynal, Annie replied that she had not fully decided the question in her own mind.

Train Wednesday, Haynal told Mrs. Buksar that his father and mother would visit her soon. The announcement of their engagement would have occasioned no surprise among the friends of the young people.

Thursday afternoon Annie asked her mother where Haynal went after the shooting, and was much grieved to learn that he was being held in custody. She asked for Chief of Police Blizard, of whom she requested the release of Haynal, declaring that he had no part in the tragedy.

Mrs. Buksar, in statement to the Advocate today, stated that Vorseck, the dead man, first became acquainted with her daughter but six weeks ago and that he fell madly in love with her at once. She had frequently forbidden him to come to her home, and stated that she believed he was crazy.

The body of Anton Vorseck, the victim of his own folly, will find a resting place in a pauper's grave in the potter's field at Cedar Hill cemetery. The body was turned over to Undertaker William Evans, who does the township work for indigent persons and he in turn secured the services of Bazler & Bradley to take the body to the cemetery. There will be no service.

Friday morning inquiry was made in the foreign section of the city, and it was learned that none of the man's acquaintances would take charge of the funeral. He was penniless except for the wages he earned when he worked.

From the pockets of his clothing were taken a silver watch of foreign manufacture, a penknife, six 38-caliber cartridges, 20 cents in money and a beer check.

The watch contained a photograph of Miss Buksar, whom he attempted to kill. These articles are in the hands of the undertakers, who will turn them over to the widow.

Alec Haynal, who was in Miss Buksar's company when the shooting occurred, was released from the city prison Thursday. He was held as a witness, but the death of Vorseck makes it unnecessary for him to be detained any longer.

ASSAULTED, THEN LEFT TO DIE IN SNOW

Cleveland, Dec. 27.—George Burns, 38, Pittsburg, and Melvin J. Gallagher, 32, of Toledo, laborers, employed on a contracting job near here, were held up by five highwaymen last night, beaten unconscious and left lying in the snow. They were found almost dead today by a party of fellow workmen. Both were in a serious condition. Burns will probably die.

PAYS TRIBUTE TO SERVICE OF PRIVATE RAMSEY

"As fine a soldier as fought in the Union ranks; a brave man, a good citizen and one that the nation might well be proud of," was the tribute paid Friday morning to the late Private William J. Ramsey, by John W. Lehigh, sergeant major of the 6th regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, of which Private Ramsey was a member. "Ramsey was in Company F. I was a member of Company C" and had an opportunity to meet him on the field of battle many a time. He was always ready to do the work required of him, and no final honors that the Grand Army of the Republic can pay at his grave can begin to repay the debt the country owes to him."

The funeral of Private Ramsey is to be held Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, Lemert Post G. A. R. administering their ceremonies at the grave in Cedar Hill cemetery.

COMPLETED PLANS FOR SUBWAY WILL BE HERE SATURDAY

Engineer Henry Maczel of Columbus will be in the city Saturday afternoon with the completely revised plans for the proposed subway improvement. These plans will be exhibited at the council chamber for the benefit of the councilmen and city officials and any one interested in the matter may be present when the engineer explains the drawings. The meeting is set for 3 o'clock. Immediately after the plans are accepted by the city, they will go over the work of the Columbus engineers and make what changes they think are necessary for the best interests of the railroad company. It will probably be some time before the plans are again returned by the railroads. It is hardly likely that the final legislation in the matter will be started before summer which means that the bond issue will not be put to a vote before that time.

MAKE YOUR DOLLARS DO DOUBLE DUTY

This is the time of the year when DOLLARS have their greatest purchasing power. The reason for this is the big stock-reducing sales and the specially prepared yearly sales now in progress at Newark's leading stores.

Many stores are preparing for inventory. They are reducing heavy stocks, closing out odd lots, and sacrificing holiday merchandise in order to put their house in order for the coming year. And as an extraordinary inducement for you to stock up now on home needs and anticipate future necessity, they offer buying opportunities not to be thought of for several months to come.

The best way to know about all these "good things" and take advantage of the economy they afford is to read THE ADVOCATE'S advertisements closely and constantly every day. Prove it yourself by reading the advertisements in THE ADVOCATE tonight.

TO PROBE ASHLAND COUNTY

Governor Harmon Will Send Atty-Gen. Hogan to Investigate

CHARGE JURY PACKING

Petitioners Name Judge W. T. Devor and Former State Senator Patterson.

Columbus, O., Dec. 27.—Attorney General Hogan will go to Ashland county to straighten out difficulties there, at the instance of Governor Harmon, who was prompted to act by the complaints of many citizens of that section. They allege connivance of officials with intent to block justice.

Recognition of the complaints by Governor Harmon is indicative that he thinks serious conditions exist. Although the governor has refused in many cases to send the attorney general to counties which have asked for his services, after a conference with the complainants a few days ago, he was inclined to regard the Ashland situation as sufficiently serious to warrant a full inquiry.

What brought matters to a head was the fatal shooting a few weeks ago of Clyde Ebert. Ebert is said to have been a member of a "kangaroo" party of boys, who fled at the approach of two policemen. They fired killing Ebert. At the subsequent session of the grand jury there was a failure to return an indictment.

The charge is made by the petitioners that a scheme was framed up by which the grand jury was packed to prevent an indictment. The jury stood 11 to 4 for an indictment, one below the number required.

Charges made to Governor Harmon concern two of the officials, Common Pleas Judge William T. Devor and Frank N. Patterson, former state senator and now virtual prosecutor by appointment of Judge Devor. Mr. Patterson takes the place of George N. Frey, the reform prosecutor, who indicted a number in connection with alleged crookedness in the county, growing out of the settlement of a couple of big estates. Some of the lawyers got nearly all of the property.

Mr. Frey made many enemies in his war against conditions in Ashland county and recently was indicted by the grand jury for abusing other officials. He was deposed from his office and though Mr. Patterson was a Republican, he was named by Judge Devor to take the prosecutor's office.

A back-handed slap at Mr. Patterson is taken by Governor Harmon in his letter, when he points out that it is to be doubted whether any services can be obtained from the office of the prosecuting attorney. He says:

"I am credibly informed that a serious condition has arisen in Ashland county, involving the administration of justice there, especially in connection with the murder of one Clyde Ebert. As you know, I am loath, on account of the demands of your duties on your time, to exercise the authority given me by Sec. 333 of the general code to direct you to appear for the state in any cause which belongs primarily to a county prosecuting attorney and that I only do so where the matters involved are so serious that they are likely to affect the interests of the state at large.

"While I know nothing personally of the situation in Ashland county above mentioned, my information comes from a reliable source and makes out a proper case for my intervention through you; besides, on the facts stated to me, there appears to be a serious question whether the service required can be expected from the office of the prosecuting attorney.

"Therefore, under the authority aforesaid, I hereby require you to appear for the state in any court or tribunal which may have jurisdiction of the case mentioned and of the situation generally with respect to the administration of justice in Ashland county."

WRECK CAUSES INJURIES; TRAFFIC BADLY BLOCKED

Washington, Dec. 27.—A passenger train and a freight met in a head-on collision on the B. and O. near Hattiesville, Md., this morning. Several passengers were injured and traffic was blocked.

CORNELL SAYS: Look Prosperous, Feel Prosperous, Act Prosperous, and You'll Be Prosperous

Some day there'll be a great essay written on the importance of good clothes. Some day all the actors in the drama of Life are going to learn that they will have to look the part of success before they can act it. This is a great truth. The man whose mirror shows him careless in his attire is a loser. The man whose mirror grins back at him and says: "You're about the finest I ever saw"—that man is already engaged as the associate of good fortune. He couldn't lose if he wanted to. Look in the mirror if your appearance doesn't suit you, let Cornell give you that air of prosperity and that feeling of prosperity that is so much desired by everybody. And remember you haven't got the excuse you can't afford it, for Cornell's prices are only

AMUSEMENTS

"SUNBONNET SUE" TOMORROW.
The producers of "Sunbonnet Sue" are to be congratulated on their foresight in choosing so clever a play and then giving it so splendid a production. Their advertising specifies it as "A Play with a Punch" and it is certainly living up to its title. In almost every city it has played the dramatic critics have united in declaring it one of the most pleasing offerings of the season. "Sunbonnet Sue" will be presented at the Auditorium theatre for two performances tomorrow. Popular prices will prevail.

HOWE'S TRAVEL FESTIVAL.
In the old dream days of childhood when you lay under the summer sun and watched the fleecy clouds go sailing across the infinite blue, you saw your ship—your golden galleon freighted with its bounding "waves" beating out to the sea.

One of those early dreams was a cruise around the world, the world that seemed so far away. Well, it will be here in a few days—the voyage of Your Dreams, as Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival is coming to the Auditorium on Sunday evening, Dec. 31.

Dynamiting a mountain; the amazing daring of structural iron-workers on the dizzy heights of sky-scraper's overtopping Broadway, New York; a race for life by three panic-stricken refugees, pursued by infuriated lions, are a few of the features of a thrilling nature which are included in the new program. A ride through the Niagara Gorge; another through the Simplon tunnel connecting Italy and Switzerland; a pictorial excursion through quaint Holland; a visit to the Milan Cathedral; to La Granja—the summer residence of the Kings of Spain—and to a model American Military Academy at Culver, Indiana; bird studies, in the exact hues of nature, Paris fashions, jelly fish of the Mediterranean, and the clever Oriental methods of trapping monkeys are only a few of the other subjects of surpassing charm and interest.

THE AL. G. FIELD GREATER MINSTRELS.

"All Hallowe'en" or "Lish Murn's Dream." The dancing, divertissement and scenic spectacle with the Al. G. Field Greater Minstrels which comes to the Auditorium on Tuesday, Dec. 31, for two performances is built on an old negro tradition narrated to Field by an ex-slave.

In the Field production the exterior of the aged negro's cabin melts away, as the Foplin is under the effects of a jugful of liquor he has quaffed, and the interior of the cottage is shown. Then the dream takes the spectacular to Goblin Dell where the dancing contingent offer a number of surprising novelties.

Melting away Goblin Dell gives place to a vivid production of Hades where Lish Murn is taken as a punishment for being a good-for-nothing zigger on earth. Here, too, the scenic effects are quite startling, and the play closes with the interior of the cabin when Lish awakens ready to take the pledge and leave Hades for the rest of his life.

The Goli Band, a new departure in minstrelsy, is one of the novelties this season. In free concerts will be offered during the week-end.

"SEVEN HOURS IN NEW YORK."
People today are too busy to read long drawn out descriptions of amusement, coming or going. If the attraction offered seems to hit the popular fancy the chances are that a big house will result. Just now, a new musical play called "Seven Hours in New York" appears to be sailing along on the top wave of prosperity, and leaving a most enviable record. The title seems to hit the bull's eye right from the start. "Seven Hours in New York" suggests a lot of happenings, and the theatre-goer is convinced that something amusing is sure to result. It is a large company, requiring a lot of baggage car to transport the scenery and electrical effects. A lot might be written or printed about the wonderful scenery, gorgeous costumes, etc., but what's the use? The chances are that "Seven Hours in New York" will draw a packed house here, and repeat its success elsewhere. It comes to the Auditorium New Year's day.

Great Auto Races at Ormond Beach, Fla. Featured With Field's Minstrels, Auditorium, Dec. 31, Matinee & Evening.

"OFFICER 666."
Col. and Harris will present in his own shortly Augustin MacLagh's melodramatic farce "Officer 666," which played all last season at the Gaiety theatre, New York, and one year at the Cohan's Grand Opera House, Chicago. The insistent appeal of this delightful entertainment demonstrated its superiority by attracting houseful audiences. In these days it takes a play with a punch to negotiate a long run in New York and the fact that "Officer 666" registered 250 performances at the Gaiety theatre, New York City proves a tribute to the author, Mr. MacLagh. At the Auditorium Thursday, Jan. 1.

AWARDED DINNER SET.
O. A. Harris of 35 James street was awarded the dinner set at the Auditorium last evening. Another set will be given away tonight.

THE ORPHEUM.

The show at the Orpheum is really a good one.

The first act on the bill is an appropriate one by the Jack Winkle Trio. Every thing the performers do in this act is new and different from any other act on the bill.

Second on the bill is a special feature "Seven Hours in New York" and a new feature by the same company. The new feature is a new and different from any other act on the bill.

Third on the bill is a special feature "Seven Hours in New York" and a new feature by the same company. The new feature is a new and different from any other act on the bill.

Fourth on the bill is a special feature "Seven Hours in New York" and a new feature by the same company. The new feature is a new and different from any other act on the bill.

and Lindsay. This is a dramatic act with a few songs, well acted and it is really clever.

Fourth on the bill is Tony Ragin, a star in his line, a musical artist and a very clever indeed, receiving many encores and returned many times to please his audience.

Fifth on the bill is the team of Leantite and Dunmore, a character change company. Mr. Leantite is very clever in his changes; he gives the impersonations of five characters.

Sixth on the bill is another motion picture and a very good story in silent drama. The show is the best bill the Arcade theatre has had in some time.

A grand special matinee at the Orpheum theatre on Saturday, at 1:15 sharp for the children. Every child will receive a special souvenir of some value. Little ones, by no means miss this performance. Don't miss the chance of seeing Mr. Leantite, the organ grinder and his little monkey. The special price of admission for children will be 3c. to all.

NAMES OF THE WINNERS IN THE MEMORY TEST

Answers Prove That Many of the Daily Advocate Readers are Familiar With Celebrities.

The flood of replies and lists received in the "Memory test" based on the remarkable composite illustration published in our issue of Tuesday proved several things very conclusively. First of all, the novelty and fairness of the test interested a much larger number of people than usually participate in contests of any kind. Secondly, that the contest interested all classes was demonstrated by the variety of stationery used by contestants, which ranged from the humble brown envelope to a corner grocery to the distinctive note paper of the most exclusive residents. Though some so-called contests are without actual merit, this cannot be said of this memory test. It stimulated much careful thought on the part of those who submitted lists, and that in itself made the contest well worth while, entirely aside from the fact that the 12 winners will encircle the globe with Lyman H. Howe at the Auditorium on Sunday night as a reward for sending in the lists nearest correct.

The contest indicates, too, that more education is manifest in the fact that the 12 winners will encircle the globe with Lyman H. Howe at the Auditorium on Sunday night as a reward for sending in the lists nearest correct.

Several misook Elbert Hubbard for Hettie Greer and quite a few decided that his picture must be that of Madame Curie—the co-discoverer of radium.

Of course, everybody recognized Roosevelt, but to be impartial as well as truthful, so were Wilson and Taft recognized by all.

While the average number of names given in the lists sent to the "memory test" editor is so high that our readers may feel justly proud of their retentive memories, a close scrutiny showed that the 12 winners' lists nearest correct came from the following:

First prize—(Four tickets)—Justina Vietneier, 125 Granville street.

Second prize—(Three tickets)—Willard Curtis Wilson, 59 Prospect street.

Third prize—(Two tickets each)—John Carr, 15 North Fourth street; C. W. Patterson, 249 West Main; Esther Abbott, 100 South Fourth; Dorothy Sner, 215 Hudson avenue.

Fourth prize—(One ticket each)—Mrs. M. E. Banner, 187 South Second street; Mrs. Harry Martin, 164 South Second street; Arthur Bollwine, North Fourth street; Arthur Street, 71 Western avenue; David A. Allen, 114 North Fourth street; Burr N. Vanatta, 271 Elmwood; Nell E. Schoeller, Miss Hill da Brough, 22 Summit street; Ralph B. Allen, 111 North Fourth street; James Donnelly, 22 Harrison street; Francis W. Leah, 64 North Fourth street; Barch Smith, 54 Clinton street; Mrs. Jennie Browne, 115 South Fourth street.

Because of the fact that most of the replies were received in the last hour of the contest, many of which were equally entitled to prizes, to be fair to all it was decided to divide the tickets equally between the contestants giving one to each of the successful ones.

The winners in the contest will call at the Advocate office Friday evening or Saturday and secure their tickets.

The exhibition of the Howe pictures will be at the Auditorium for one night only, Sunday night. Since the last appearance of this entertainment at the Auditorium, new features have been added to the program and it has lost none of its attraction as an educational entertainment.

Land of the Automat.

Germany might almost be called "the land of the automat." Automatic devices of all kinds are popular and are used for a thousand purposes. At all postoffices stamps and post cards are sold by automatic machines; at the railway stations platform tickets and suburban tickets are sold by automats; automat restaurants, where one can secure a glass of beer, wine or liquor, a sandwich, square meal, cup of coffee, chocolate, etc., by dropping a coin in the slot, abound everywhere. Every city of 15,000 or 20,000 population and over has from one to several hundred such restaurants. At railway stations automats sell chocolate, candy, picture post cards and even a little kit of "first aid to the injured" containing a few drops of pain killer, bandages, needle, thread, etc. Ten pfennigs in a slot opens the door of toilet compartments, delivering a towel or piece of soap. A coin in a slot obtains a cigar, a tune from a mechanical music box, a pair of shoe strings, a collar button, a visiting card, name plate for suit case, tells one's fortune or weight, etc.—United States Consular Report.

Moscow.

Moscow is one of the most famous cities in Europe. Exactly 100 years before Napoleon's raid Moscow yielded up to Petersburg—the modern addition "Saint" was unknown to its founder.

Peter the Great—the position of capital of the Russian empire, but its geographical situation has enabled it to remain the premier commercial and industrial city. The heart of Moscow is the Kremlin, where the czars are crowned and where may be seen the 875 cannon which Napoleon took to the city and left behind him when forced to retreat with the remnant of his great army. Moscow is 400 miles southeast of Petersburg, with which it is connected by a railway line almost as straight as the crow flies. When Nicholas I. decided the line should be built he drew a straight line on the map between the two cities, and engineers overcame almost incredible difficulties to keep the railway to the route indicated.

FATTEN CHICKS FOR MARKET

Arkansas Woman Has Much Success With Coop Covered With Wire Netting—Ration Used.

I am having great success in fattening my overstock of chick cockerels for hotel and restaurant trade, writes Mrs. Almo of Roswell, N. M., in the Farmers' Mail and Breeze. My feeding coop shows in the drawing has a solid floor of matched boards, covered with an inch of road grit. The top is covered with poultry netting, over which a solid roof is hinged, which may be raised on warm days. The front and weat end are covered with wire netting. The roosts are in the west end of the coop. The feed drawer is covered with two-inch mesh wire netting and one feeding a week will do. I feed the following mixture for fattening: One quart each, alfalfa meal, corn chop and bran, and one pint meal scraps. This way of feeding saves both time and feed and I now make money where I lost money before with ordinary care. Besides my own stock, I buy chicks of the quick-growing breeds to fatten.

Coop for Market Feeding.

GERMAN EGG-LAYING TESTS

Results Given of Experiments Made to Determine Effect of Various Meat Meals on Poultry.

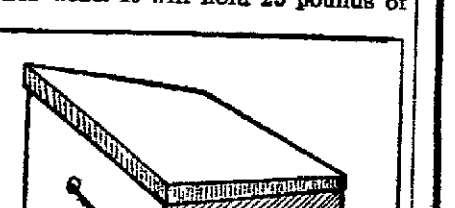

Tests were made a short time since in Germany to determine the effect of different meat meals on poultry. During these experiments it was found that the egg production ceased earlier than with normal hens. Fish meal was more favorable for egg production than meat meal. The eggs were of poorer flavor than normal eggs, and could not be preserved in the usual way.

The meat meal increased the intensity of the yellow color of the yolk. The flesh of the birds fed meat meal was normal as regards taste and odor, though slightly changed in color, melting point and fat, which were higher than normal, but lower than normal with fish meal. When fed cadaver meal the flesh of the fowl had a rancid taste, and whenever fed should be free from fat as possible, tuberculosis did not cause tuberculosis in the hens.

FEED SUPPLY CAN IS USEFUL

Galvanized Receptacle, as Shown in Illustration, Affords Protection From Rodents.

Where one keeps much feed in the poultry house and wishes to protect it from rats and mice, such as is shown in the illustration, is the best device. This is made of galvanized iron 18 1/2 inches high at the back, 12 inches in front, 9 inches deep and 11 inches wide. It will hold 25 pounds of whole grain. There should be a heavy ball on each can, so that it may be carried easily, and to hang it up by. There should be at least one can for each poultry house. This avoids the necessity of carrying a measure of feed around when gathering the eggs.

POULTRY NOTES

Keep something in the grit box. Poultry keeping is business of quick profits.

Suggestions of fall weather are reviving egg prices.

Plowing up runs and yards is a seasonal job any time.

All the milk they will consume is a help to the molting hens.

Corn makes fat and heat. Oats, wheat, bran and middlings make eggs.

Not a bit of decayed food of any kind ever ought to be given a hen or chick.

Too many birds in a house simply can not do so well as they would otherwise.

Before the roads get frozen, scrape up some dust for winter use. Put it in a dry place.

Ten hens that have room according to their strength will bring in more money than fifteen crowded.

When we get a good many chicks on hand there is a temptation to crowd them during the winter season.

BREAD AND MEAT COMPATIBLE.

A reader asks why I advise bread to be eaten with fish when several authorities advise that potatoes be eaten with fish or with meat rather than bread. The only reason for combining potatoes with fish or fish is that the latter contains an excess of protoid while potatoes contain less than bread and therefore would more nearly approximate a balanced ration. If the only principle governing combination were the avoiding of an excess of protein, which is important, potatoes would be a better combination with meat or fish, but if fish is eaten only occasionally the excess of protein can be avoided by using the sugar fruits largely, (figs, dates, bananas, pines, raisins, etc.) Bread is a better supply of carbohydrate than potatoes and as a combination with fish or fish it meets one of the most important principles of combination (which the authors referred to have not considered), that is, foods should be eaten together, as far as possible, that digest in about the same time and that are most alike in composition and therefore most compatible. Experience has proved that the best food for the dog, after his natural food, is wheat products. Potatoes are not suitable for the dog but better adapted to the herbivora. From this it should be clear that meat and bread combine well. In fact I believe that bread and carefully selected meat or fish would give better results than the ordinary incompatible mixtures, bad as the excess of protein from the use of flesh is.

Men will probably continue to buy gold bricks just as long as women continue to marry for money.

WASHINGTON LETTER
(By Clyde H. Tavenner.)
Washington, Dec. 27.—There is one way, and one way only, for the Democrats to remain in power: by giving the people after election what they promised before election. The people don't want excuses; they want deeds.

This is Speaker Champ Clark's idea of what the Democratic party must do to make good and to be retained in power.

"If there is anything I believe in strongly," said Mr. Clark, "it is that promises made to win an election
should be religiously carried out after the election is won."

"Men should say what they mean and mean what they say; and they should speak the plain language of the plain people so that all may understand. The voters of the land have a right to be treated honestly, candidly, fairly and courageously. They are entitled to that square deal of which we hear so much and see so little."

"Robert J. Walker's report on the tariff remains to this day the greater paper on that subject. In it he laid down this general principle: 'The highest rate should be on luxuries;
the lowest or none at all on the necessaries of life.' That should be the basis of our revision of the tariff to which we are solemnly committed."

"The rates should be arranged so as to produce the maximum of revenue,
while taking from the ultimate consumers the minimum of money in the shape of tariff taxes. That statement may appear paradoxical, but what it proposes is perfectly feasible.
There is a maximum revenue-producing tariff rate on each particular item which can be ascertained, and which should be ascertained. The maximum rate on any article goes above
the maximum revenue-producing rate and the revenue begins to fall off and the more the rate is increased the more the revenue dwindles until it disappears entirely, and the rate becomes prohibitive."

"Such is the case with blankets nine feet long, worth not over forty cents per pound, an article of prime necessity on which the compound specific and ad valorem amounts to a tariff of between 165 and 182 1/2 per cent."

"Without going into wearisome details, it is safe to say that three-fourths of all the tariff rates of the Payne-Aldrich-Smoot tariff bill are above the maximum revenue-producing rates and should be reduced at least to a competitive point."

"The truth is that the words 'a competitive tariff are more easily understood than the words 'a tariff for revenue only.' 'A competitive tariff'
is one which would give Americans
the American market so long as they sell at fair prices, but would let in foreign products if Americans undertake to gouge Americans. 'A competitive tariff' would in practice be 'a tariff for revenue.' The revenue can be increased more frequently by reducing rates than by increasing them.
The present tariff, if thoroughly overhauled, could be made to produce a great deal more revenue and at the same time not cost the taxpayers one-fourth of what they now pay, for under the present system where one dollar goes into the federal treasury
four or five dollars go into the pockets of the tariff barons."

"The rates in a new bill or new bills should be fully as low as the rates in the bills which we passed during the congress, and in some cases lower."

"All the talk about the Democrats
wanting to injure business is absolutely preposterous."

"What we want to do is to give every man an equal opportunity in the race of life, and not pamper a few at the expense of many. That plan would foster every legitimate industry in the land and injure none. That is one way in which congress can aid in reducing the exceedingly high cost of living, which is really the most pressive vexation, and important problem with which we have to deal.
What the people demand is cheaper

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.
Washington, Dec. 27.—[Special.]—Intimate association with weather bureau folks has made me rather sorry for them rather than critical. It so happens that right here in Washington, where the weather bureau lives,
it makes more failures in the way of predictions than in any other part of the country. Washington is just near enough to mountain ranges and near enough to the sea to make sure weather-ers guessing out of the question. The storm that seems certain is switched off by air currents, deflected by the mountains, or in some way it does not arrive.

The fair weather which seems assured vanishes because a dampness
from the sea or a whirly twirly movement of the great lakes brings a storm
here that should have gone out over the Atlantic ocean, and so our weather
scientists who gather at the Cosmos club receive more than their share of chaffing.

Willis Moore Satisfied.
But Willis Moore is satisfied with the results throughout the country,
and it is a fact that storm warnings
along the seacoast and great lakes, weather predictions throughout the large farming region of the middle west and generally successful prognos-tics warrant the chief of the bureau in being content with the results of his work.

But there was a bit of a scare in
the weather bureau during the campaign. Chief Moore took pronounced and emphatic grounds against the claim of Gifford Pinchot regarding the gathering of moisture by forests.
Moore says forests have nothing to do with rainfall. Now, Gifford Pinchot as secretary of agriculture might not like to have a subordinate in one of his most important bureaus who disputes
his pet theory.

A Retired Politician.
For twenty years James D. Richardson represented one of the Tennessee districts in the house and then voluntarily retired. From the turbulence of the house for he was minority leader
at one time, and "turbulence" exactly describes it—he has settled into the quiet life of sovereign grand commander of the southern jurisdiction of the United States Scottish Rite Masons.
Some name and title that, but it is quiet compared to political life, even with all those words.

Masons in Congress.
There are many Masons in congress and still more comparatively in the government federal service. The Masons in congress do not, as a rule, give much time to their lodges and work of the order. They do not have the time.
The Masons in the departments are quite earnest and enthusiastic. There was a time when it was supposed that being a Mason helped a man along in the departments, but that is rather doubtful. It is claimed that membership in the Knights of Columbus is more of an asset politically and in official life than in the Masonic order.
Many Knights of Columbus hold important places in the government service.

Wiley Not Alone.
Dr. Wiley told his grievance against Roosevelt. The colonel when president once called Wiley and idiot. But Wiley is not alone. Many another official heard a similar expression about himself when he differed with the president. "What do those geese mean?"
once asked President Roosevelt, referring to a score of august senators who were opposing one of his pet measures.
Many members of the house have been called into Roosevelt's office and told that they were in the Wiley class, or words to the same effect.

Money and Campaigns.
No one could convince Mr. Bryan that his campaign funds did not cause
his defeat in 1896 and in 1900. Judge Parker is quite well assured that the campaign fund of 1904 was a big factor in his defeat. Going back further,
it is known that ample money was behind Cleveland in both of his successful campaigns and behind Harrison when he was elected. Beyond that time it is not supposed that money was so much in evidence, though we do hear that in 1876 the Tilden purse
was wide open.

Of course all the talk about campaign expenditures, both for nominating a candidate and electing him indicates that it is getting to be a very hard thing to arouse public sentiment. It would be a mighty interesting thing
to see a man elected as was Lincoln in two campaigns without the aid of so much money.

It seems to be a growing feeling that neither corporations nor any man
personally for any reason should contribute hundreds of thousands to elect a president.

All that glitters isn't inspired by the golden rule.

"Recognized Leader Among Typewriters"

Consider all that is meant by these words. Leadership means superiority of a product—a superiority which produces leadership and is proven by leadership.

It means more than this. It means everything associated with the word
FIRST.

The Remington Typewriter is first in history, first in prestige, first in quality, first in recent improvements,
first in size and completeness of organization, first in distribution and first in service to the customer.

The word FIRST in every department of leadership applies only to the

Once Upon a Time in France.
There was a time in France when a foolish actress who was ambitious enough to want a decoration and so ill advised as to make application for it to one of the ministers was punished by imprisonment. It was during the reign of Louis XV., and the first gentleman in waiting of his majesty wrote this to the governor of the Fort
l'Eveque prison:

Dear Sir—Having been informed that Mlle. Clairon has had the insolence and has been mad enough to select one of the king's decorations, to which neither her sex nor her profession entitles her, I write
you this letter in the name of the king.
You are to lock her up in your good prison
of Fort l'Eveque and make things unpleasantly uncomfortable for her to teach her a lesson. Every evening, however,
one of your men will have to conduct her to the Comedie Francaise in order that the public shall not be deprived of the pleasure of applauding the talent of this indiscreet woman.

LIA RS
"All men are liars," David said, disgustedly, when he had read a lengthy campaign speech. And what he said was true today as it was then, as all conditions teach. It shouldn't surprise us, though, our mirch, that liars people all the earth and through the busy ways: for liars make this life worth while and give the human face a smile, and brighten all our days. When I am sick the liars tell how sad they are that I'm not well, how mournful are their hearts: they hand me sympathy so sweet that warmth comes to my rigid feet, and all my pain departs. And when I write a misfit poem the liars seek my humble home to tell me it was fine: they thus encourage me to strive, to keep the faded muse alive
when she's in a decline. The liars take the cheerful view, as this old world they amble through: they are the optimists; they rob this life of half its knots, and color up the faded spots, and straighten out the twists.
The liars says the clouds will break and that the good old sun will make this planet once more glad; the growth, and makes our bosoms sad. Some lies are gentle, kindly things; some truths are barbed with painful stings, keen as a serpent's tooth: I have no doubt that in the skies the angels like some kinds of lies far better than the truth.

THE HUMAN PROCESSION
By O. Terrence.
WOODROW WILSON TO CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY SATURDAY.

Fifty-six years ago tomorrow there was born in Staunton, Va., the most wonderful baby in the world. The description was supplied by the mother of the remarkable infant, and confirmed by the father. To the nude and casual eye of the neighbors the gift of the story was just an ordinary infant man who, with good luck,
might become a preacher, a professor,
or a plumber. The proud parents were Joseph Rogers Wilson and Jessee Wilson, nee Woodrow, and the youngster was christened Thomas Woodrow Wilson. Wilson pere was Scotch-Irish, Presbyterian, a South-erner to the heart's core, and a preacher who could prove by numerous Bible texts that the institution of slavery was ordained by God.

Tommy Wilson was a bright and studious lad, and received his early education in private schools at Augusta, Georgia, and Columbia, South Carolina. The first decade of his life was marked by stirring and tragic events,
with the North and South clenching
at each other's throats in a struggle to the death. Quite naturally, Tommy Wilson's sympathies were all with the Confederacy, and his heart beat high with elation at news of victory for the boys in gray, while none felt more keenly the sting of final defeat.
After a period at Davidson College,
in North Carolina, Tommy became a member of the Phi Kappa fraternity at Princeton, and became Thomas Woodrow Wilson. Entering the famous New Jersey institution of learning in 1875, he graduated four years later, and returned to his native
state to take the law course at the University of Virginia.

Thirty years ago Thomas W. Wilson began the practice of law in Atlanta, Ga. In that state the young barrister met and fell in love with Ellen Louise Axson, of Savannah, the daughter of a Presbyterian minister, and they were married in 1885. Their

GOSHEN.
Wesley Martin, son of Jonathan and Catharine Martin, was born near Fallsburg, O., July 7, 1861, and died
Nov. 8, 1912, aged 51 years, 4 months and 16 days. He was united in marriage with Mary J. Ridenbaugh Nov. 25, 1882. To this union were born four children. He had been in failing health for several years with heart trouble. In early life he united with the Mt. Pleasant church and learned that great lesson of "putting his trust in Jesus,"
and in his sickness he sweetly made him his friend. He was a kind and devoted husband, and a loving and faithful father. A father, mother, brother and an infant daughter, lay preceded him to the grave. He leaves to mourn a wife,
three children, Mrs. Mina Morris, Arla and Earl, of the home; three brothers, two half brothers and a host of friends and relatives.

Our father has left us.
But why should we weep?
In heaven we will meet him
In the awakening of sleep.
He is gone—he has left us.
No more here to roam.
But God in his wisdom
Has taken him home.
His place is now vacant—
No other can fill.
O how we will miss him
When the evening is still.
His pain has now left him,
And now all is well.
He is roaming in heaven,
With angels to dwell.
Dear Father, now comfort us.
In this dark and lonely hour.
Mr. G. W. Chapin and Mr. W. M.
Frampton were Bladensburg callers
Saturday.

Protracted meeting is in progress
at Pleasant Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kline gave a Christmas dinner in honor of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Coffman of Youngstown, O. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Davis and family, Lela, Roy, Clarence and Earl, and Mr. Kline's mother.

Mr. R. D. Nutter entertained with a theatre party at the Orpheum Thursday evening and the guests enjoyed the excellent bill which Manager Boyce has secured for his patrons.

Mrs. Nellie Weist of South Fifth street, Zanesville, entertained with a dinner on Wednesday noon which complimented Mr. and Mrs. William Fulk who were married Tuesday evening in Newark. Mrs. Fulk was formerly Miss Pearl Shaffer of Granville and Mr. Fulk is a prominent young farmer of near Granville. They are spending a few days the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Dunlavy of Zanesville before going to their home at Granville.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Hazlett entertained with a turkey dinner on Christmas day at their home in Franklin township. Suggestions of Christmas were conspicuous throughout all the rooms and in the menu. The relatives and guests were: Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hazlett, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hazlett, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Hazlett, Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. Jeffers, Misses Florence Hazlett, Len Hazlett, Leota Jeffers, Mr. Ray Jeffers, and Samuel Muncie and Mr. and Mrs. John Parr.

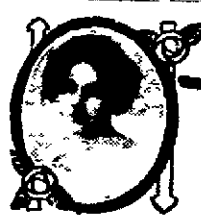

Mrs. W. A. McMillen of Granville street entertained at dinner Christmas Day Mrs. Kate Lucas and sons Harry and Power, Mrs. Jones and Katherine McMillen.

The Centum club entertained with its Christmas dance last evening at Assembly Hall. During the evening supper was served in the balcony.

The following dancers enjoyed a program by Marsh's orchestra: Messrs and Mesdames D. J. Taylor, G. M. Rolev, E. S. Hoover, E. E. E. Moore, W. M. Shamp, T. E. Shortell, George C. Vail, O. E. Seward, W. K. Daugherty, E. A. Hirst, H. D. Doane, J. T. Hartman, C. K. Reck, S. W. Swan, C. L. V. Holtz, G. E. Besanceny, George Stream, D. M. Thompson, Dr. E. V. Prior, M. C. Kent, F. S. Doane, F. C. Haas, Miss Hazel Bolin of Minneapolis, Minn., Miss Marie Chundard of Columbus, Mr. Karl Ashton of Zanesville, Mr. Fred Nash of Kenton, and Miss Binton of Zanesville.

It was indeed a "Merry Christmas" for the Farmer family of Buckingham street as December 25th witnessed a reunion of the entire family—father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Farmer, their thirteen children and a number of grandchildren, a gathering of thirty in all. Not a member of the family was absent.

Those present were A. H. Farmer

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

by Barbara Boyd

Happiness in Loving

HAPPINESS is the thing most sought for in this world. We are all questing for it, most of us by different roads. Some seek for it in money. Others in fame. Others in feasting and the gratification of the senses. But with all of our searching, few of us find it. Yet it is not lying right at our hand, simply in loving? For is not the man or woman whose heart is full of love, happy?

And by this is not meant sentimental love. This to be sure brings happiness, for a time at least. But it is only a small part, merely a drop, of the great ocean of love, the love that leaves all shores and has no element of personality or selfishness in it.

Think of love in its largest sense, think of it as filling your heart, as overflowing your whole nature, and flooding you with good-will toward every one, and immediately, does not the spirit of happiness take possession of you?

If you could imagine yourself in the starry spaces above, with the great eternal love throbbing in every part of your being, and see yourself looking down upon the world, and loving every single person and thing in it, wouldn't you be gloriously happy? Wouldn't a wondrous joy fill you, which even to imagine thrills all your being?

Just try for the sake of the experiment, imagining this state. Leave your envious and your jealousies and your dislikes and hates behind. Try to understand your fellowmen and women and their weaknesses and their temptations in such a big way, that all these wrong feelings in regard to them drop away from you. Try to fill your heart with love for them and all the beautiful creation about you. Rather, let the great love that is under and in all flow in upon you. Try to realize it in your consciousness. Try to feel it and know it. And to you will come a sense of happiness almost overpowering in its greatness and joy.

We realize, even in small ways, the power of love to make us happy. When we are feeling the sense of love for our child or our father or mother, husband or wife, or friend, we are happy. And yet how limited is this, how trifling upon and broken here and there by the things of the world? But it furnishes a taste of the happiness love can give. It points the way to the wondrous happiness that would be ours did we love greatly, did we give all of ourselves over to love of all.

And at this season, when love is already at higher tide than usual in our hearts, why not let it flow on unchecked? Why not let it well into all the dry springs of our nature, until the little flowers of happiness start up everywhere, and life becomes beautiful for all the rest of our days?

At any rate, this effort of withdrawing from worldly affairs for a little while, and trying to feel love for all humanity, is worth while. It will give us a foretaste of that happiness that will be ours when we can see life with the larger vision.

ABBOTT SOLVES MYSTERY OF THE OLD SUITCASE

Patrolman Abbott has finally succeeded in solving the "suicase mystery" which has been hanging fire at headquarters since early last fall. He has located the owner of the suitcase, who claims to be Mrs. Dale Mc-

Laughlin and who mysteriously disappeared after going with the patrolman to the home of the man whom she claims married her in Mansfield. It will be remembered that the woman came to headquarters last fall and asked the officers to help her locate her husband. Patrolman Abbott went with her to the home of McLaughlin's mother. The mother ordered both off the place and threatened violence. The girl left the officer talking with the woman and when Abbott looked around for his charge she was no place in sight.

Her suitcase full of clothing and a large package remained at headquarters for months. Abbott finally learned that she was in Ashland and wrote to her at that place. Friday a letter was received instructing the officer to forward her property by express. She signed the letter "Mrs. Dale McLaughlin" and the suitcase was sent under that name.

How Cowards Were Punished.

Many of the devices by which military indifference to life has been maintained and sustained are curious. In ancient Athens the public temples were closed to those who refused military service, who deserted their ranks or lost their bucklers, while a law constrained those offenders to sit for three days in the public forum dressed in the garments of a woman. Many a Spartan mother would stab her son who came back alive from a defeat, and such a man, if he escaped his mother, was debarr'd not only from public offices, but from marriage, exposed to the blows of all who chose to strike him, compelled to dress in mean clothing and to wear his beard negligently trimmed. In the same way a horse soldier who fled or lost his shield or received a wound in any save the front part of the body was by law prevented from ever afterward appearing in public.

Breaking Him In

He Had Good Grit

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Three men of the Circle C ranch met the newcomer at the railroad station and solemnly escorted him down the platform where half a dozen horses were tied to the hitching posts. Secretly they were laughing at the small, undersized chap who had actually secured a job with the Circle C outfit through the medium of a letter. If ever an individual merited the title "tenderfoot" it was the slender, pale faced newcomer, who wore a derby hat, tan shoes and a faded blue serge business suit. His manner was diffident, and his name was Irving Finney, and he was under twenty.

"Of course you can ride," suggested Long Jenks as he tossed a careless hand in the direction of a white horse. "Not very well," returned the other, with alarm in his voice. "I hope he isn't wild."

The white horse was meek enough and carried his timid rider without event to their early camp for the night. Long Jenks informed the newcomer that the ranch lay thirty miles beyond and they would sleep before resuming the journey. Finney said little to his companions. He seemed merged in despondency and after eating a light supper wrapped himself in his blanket, placed his feet to the fire and went to sleep.

Something roused him in the dark of the hour, and he became conscious that a whispered conversation was taking place among his companions. Long Jenks was speaking earnestly:

"Oh, pshaw! You needn't tell me I can't pick out one of that kind. Didn't I wake up half an hour ago and see this Finney come sneaking into camp on that blue mustang of Witherbee's? He must 'o' heard me stirring, because he didn't stop to unsaddle. He just slipped off and laid down and pretended to be asleep. He's as mean a cattle thief as ever I see, and if I have my way he'll hang to the highest cottonwood hereabouts!" Long Jenks spoke fiercely.

"BLAME IT ALL—SHOOT IF YOU WANTER!" HE YELLED.

"What made him come back here? Why didn't he run the critter off?" demanded Saleeby's voice.

"That's an easy one. He was going to pinch one or two more and run the lot off together and leave us—us here without a hide to git back to Circle C. Got any loading?" Finney heard the click of revolvers and muttered remarks as the men exchanged cartridges. Then they rolled over and apparently went to sleep, for long and noisy outward demonstrations bore witness to their slumbers.

What unfortunate complication of circumstances had combined to place suspicion on him? On his very first day, too, when he was homesick and weary.

All night long he shivered in his blanket under the brooding, sultry sky. Then just as a faint grayness tinged the murky black he wriggled his way toward the spot where the ponies were staked.

There was a low whinny as his hand met a velvet nose, and his fingers trembled as they touched the dangling bit and slipped it between unwilling jaws. In another instant he had left the group of restless ponies and was speeding away through the darkness, the soft thud of hoofs leaving a trail which he felt would be followed to the death. Long Jenks had said so.

He bent his lean body to the rough mane of the horse and pounded with fists and spurs and heels on the vibrating flesh. He felt the onward rush of the beast, the pumping of blood through swollen veins, as he clung to the bridle rein. Somehow the saddle became loosened and at last slid away in the darkness, almost unscathed, and driving the horse almost frantic with fear. He tried to entwine his legs beneath the pony's belly. There was a numbing blow from flying hoofs and one foot hung useless. Once he turned, and the glitter of steel and a faint about from behind told him that the worst had happened. The line riders who had been his companions of the night before had discovered his flight and were in hot pursuit.

With despairing eyes fixed straight ahead and ears painfully alert to every sound in the rear, he urged his tired beast forward with cruelly nipping fingers. The pain from his wounded foot was maddening, and the agony sent the blood reeling to his head. His dazed eyes hunted the plain for a place of refuge. Every flashing hoofbeat thundered: "To cover!" "To cover!"

There was a sharp crack and the whistle of a bullet over his head. He turned his sandy head and laughed shrilly, but the derisive laughter changed to a cry of terror as he saw his pursuers not a hundred yards distant, their weapons leveled. The next shot would take him between the shoulders. He would be shot in the back, and they would know it at home in the east. All the blood of his forebears, heroes of Bunker Hill and Gettysburg, rose and flamed in his little gray-green eyes. With a hoarse shout he swung his pony about and faced the oncoming men.

"Blame it all—shoot if you want!" he yelled.

The line riders pulled their dripping animals to a halt, and the tallest and leanest, Long Jenks, drew a ragged mustache between his fingers thoughtfully. "What s—say?" he drawled.

"I say, shoot if you want. It won't hit me in the back!" The boy's voice shook with some sudden emotion as he faced the three grim, saturnine faces.

For a moment they stared back at him; then they slipped from their saddles and rolled in the crackling sagebrush. Long Jenks was the first to recover himself.

The lad on the pony's back reddened to his unkempt hair. "I heard you talking last night—something about me stealing a blue mustang. I don't know anything about it. I never saw a blue mustang!" he muttered sullenly.

The three men rolled in the brush once more while the tenderfoot stared resentfully at them. "He ain't never seen a blue mustang!" shrieked Beese, pointing a finger at the lad's mount.

"The boy looked down and a strange expression came into his homely face. When he raised his little eyes a flame flickered in their green depths. The pony which he had found ready bridled in the gray dawn and which had borne him so valiantly in his flight drooped wearily under the fierce rays of the sun. The wet coat showed a bluish gray.

"Is this the blue mustang?" asked the boy in a husky voice.

They shrieked assent. "It was a joke," they said gleefully.

"Git up there, you blamed cowards!" cried the boy fiercely, and, strange to relate, there was that in his voice that brought the three to their feet.

"Look at that there foot!" he commanded of Long Jenks, and that gentleman inspected the injured and swollen foot with some concern in his good natured face.

"It sure must hurt some, sonny," he said regretfully as he backed off to a position beside his companions. It looked very much as if the tenderfoot was to be judge and jury and executioner also.

"We was only breaking you in," murmured Beese, uncomfortably, for they could all see the boy was suffering and dared not offer him any assistance in his resentful mood.

"You've gone and broke up my plans!" he flared suddenly. "I've come way out here into the God forsaken country to look for somebody and you have gone and put me back weeks in my search. She'll only have to worry that much more so's you folks could have some fun. I'd—I'd like to smash your faces!"

"I reckon we deserve it—we didn't think of doing harm. Tell us who you are looking for and maybe we can help you. Sure, the three of us as knows the plains like an open book can do more than one lone little chap like you." When Long Jenks smiled like that he was irresistible, and the boy's somber face softened.

"It's my father I'm looking for. He and my mother disagreed about something when I was a little feller, and he went away and left her. He sends her money every month, but that isn't the proper thing. He's got to come back and be the head of the family and stand back of her or I'll know the reason why. I didn't know where he was till lately. She knew he was in the cattle country from the postmarks on his letters, and I've come to find him, but nobody seems to know the name of Finney so far as I've come."

He looked discouraged. He and Beese looked at Long Jenks, and Long Jenks went white as paper and stared at the homely face of the boy, now so like his own, even to the grim mouth. The boy gazed back at him long and earnestly, and something flashed between them, and they both knew.

"You ain't got to look any farther. Irving, your father's been waiting for a summons this fifteen years. He thought he wasn't wanted back there and"—He stopped and drew a brown hand across his trembling lips.

"Oh, if you could only see her, you'd know," cried the boy excitedly.

"It won't be long before we both see her," retorted Long Jenks meaningly. He stepped forward and lifted the boy from the saddle, brushing his cheek with his lips as he did so, and both of them blushed.

"Gents," said Long Jenks with becoming dignity, "I'll have to ask you to render some first aid to the injured here. My son has hurt himself a-fighting three grown men all to once."

"And his name is Sandy Grit hereafter," added Beese solemnly.

In getting to the top every man must be his own elevator.

Street Crowds in Caracas.

One of the features of the city of Caracas, Venezuela, that most strongly impresses a foreigner is the rapidity with which a crowd gathers in the streets. This is best exemplified when some of the many wandering musicians, in whom Caracas abounds, prepare to give an impromptu open air concert. Their first notes no sooner echo through the neighborhood than there gathers to listen a vast throng that almost blocks up the thoroughfare. The cobblers and all the other tenants of the entries, having no doors to open or stairs to descend, are on the spot almost instantly. They eagerly drink in the music, but at the same time bear a wary eye upon the hats of the musicians and no sooner do they observe the slightest indication that one is about to be taken off for the purpose of taking up a collection by passing it around among the crowd than they disappear even more quickly than they came.

The man who waits for inspiration is still waiting.

Historic Blackguards

By Albert Payson Terhune

Gen. Charles Lee—The Traitor Who Threatened America

GEN. WASHINGTON and his staff thundered up, through the broiling summer heat, to the stricken battlefield of Monmouth. News had reached the commander-in-chief that his trusted leader, Gen. Chas. Lee, had disobeyed orders and that as a result, the American army was retreating.

Washington took in the situation at a glance. The patriots were falling back. The British were everywhere successful. His blue eyes ablaze with anger, the chief galloped across to Lee.

"In heaven's name, General," he shouted, "what means this ill-timed prudence?"

"I know of no one," sneered Lee, "who has more of that abominable virtue than your excellency."

At this retort the last barriers of Washington's patience gave way. He hurled at Lee a public reprimand that the latter never forgot nor forgave. It was a case of a first man's wrath at a blackguard's misdeeds.

Charles Lee was born in England in 1731. He joined the British army as a mere child. At the age of eleven he was a commissioned officer. He fought in America during the French and Indian war and rose fast in rank to a lieutenant-colonelcy. But he had a sarcastic tongue and an ungovernable temper. He criticised his superior officers and made fun of their weaknesses. This sort of thing does not help a man on in any walk of life. It led at last to Lee's practical dismissal from the army. He drifted to Poland and Russia, where, serving as a soldier of fortune, he received the rank of major-general. He also won doubtful fame as a ferocious duelist.

Leaving Russia, Lee made his way to America a short time before the Revolution. He hated England and he loved intrigue. He plunged into the stirring politics of the day, siding with the patriots. The Revolutionary army was short of experienced officers and was delighted to accept the services of so noted a soldier as Lee. He was offered the rank of second major-general under General Washington. He bargained shrewdly with Congress before accepting this honor, declaring that King George's government would surely confiscate his British estates, and demanding to be paid for them. Congress agreed to give him $30,000 out of the impoverished patriot treasury as recompense for this possible loss.

Now began Lee's American military career. From the first he seems to have had two aims. One, to seize Washington's position as commander-in-chief; the other, to sell the American cause, at the best possible terms, to the British. After more than one risking the army's welfare by disobeying Washington's orders, Lee was captured at Basking Ridge, N. J., by the British. Whether or not he consented to the capture in order to carry out his treason plot cannot be known. But during his captivity (most of which he spent in a suite of rooms in New York City Hall) he came to terms of understanding with the British general, Howe, and explained to him his ideas on how best to crush the Revolution. Thinking he would be of more use to them in the Revolutionary army than in prison, the British set him free in 1778 and he went back to his duties. (The complete draft of Lee's plan, by which the colonies might be overthrown, was found in 1857 among General Howe's private papers.)

Then came the battle of Monmouth. The English, under Clinton, in June, 1778, evacuated Philadelphia and retreated across New Jersey to the British headquarters at New York. Washington resolved to smash part of the British army at Monmouth, N. J., on its march. Lee begged him not to make the attempt, but Washington sent him with an advance guard of 6,000 men to overtake the enemy.

Lee caught up with the British at Monmouth on June 28, 1778, and began the battle in so strange and incompetent a way that Lafayette, in alarm, sent a secret message begging Washington to hurry to the front. Washington arrived in time to meet Lee in full retreat. He rebuked the traitor, rallied the army and saved the day.

No one could understand Lee's odd behavior, for no one then knew he was false. In rage at the rebuke, he wrote two insulting letters to Washington, who promptly ordered him arrested. A court-martial suspended him from active service for a year. In rage, he retired to a mountain hut, where, for months, he lived like a hermit.

As his year of suspension drew to an end, Lee wrote an abusive letter to Congress, and was at once dismissed from the army. He went to live on an estate he had bought in the Shenandoah Valley. In 1782 he visited Philadelphia, where he fell ill and died.

Spotie Was Very Much Offended.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Black Dog and the Spotted Dog

ACROSS the way they had bought a new dog. Jack admired it very much. Evelyn, however, did not think it nearly so handsome as a puppy that had been given to a school friend by Santa Claus.

"I hope the dogs are quite satisfied with their looks," said daddy. "There were Spotie and Blackie, two dogs who were next door neighbors. Spotie was a coach dog. His coat was white, covered with black spots. Blackie's coat was all black.

"Spotie and Blackie had been quite good friends until somebody talked about their looks before them. It isn't good for puppy dogs or people to get too much praise. It makes them vain.

"If Spotie and Blackie had been wise enough to keep their vanity to themselves all would have gone well; but, like most vain people, they had to talk about it.

"One morning Spotie poked his pointed little nose through the fence and yapped to Blackie: 'I'm the handsomest dog around here. Nellie, my little mistress, said so this morning.'

"Oh, nonsense!" Blackie replied. "My mistress said I was the handsomest dog. She is a much cleverer little girl than your mistress."

"The next morning Spotie called through the fence: 'Nellie's grandfather was here yesterday. You should have seen what a fuss he made over me. He said I was the dearest little puppy in town.'

"That's nothing at all," Spotie exclaimed. "My little mistress' dear old grandma was here today, and she said I was the nicest dog she ever knew."

"Grandmas don't know as much as grandpas," Blackie yelled. Of course Spotie was very much offended and said all sorts of nasty things.

"After that the little dogs were not friends, and when one passed the other he would bark in such an unfriendly way that their little mistresses could not take them out to play together.

"And one day Spotie's mistress left the gate open. Spotie was just inside the gate as Blackie came along and said something saucy. In a minute Spotie was out after Blackie, and they were snapping and snarling at one another just like two common street dogs.

"And that evening Spotie's folks said: 'We'll have to send that dog away. He's too quarrelsome.'

"And that night Blackie's folks said: 'That dog is too cross. We can't keep him.'

"And so they were sent to new homes, which they didn't like nearly so well, and you may be sure they learned to be less vain and snappish."

Monday of this week, and will continue the various businesses in the Vance block, which he has leased. Mr. and Mrs. Vance have not determined definitely their future arrangements, but will continue to reside in their dwelling east of the hotel for the remainder of the winter. For 40 years Mr. Vance has been prominently identified with business in Utica, with livery and hotel, and he served the people well in both. We wish him success in whatever he determines to engage in, in the future.

RID YOUR FEET OF SORE CORNS

Quite easy now to extract any kind of a corn—just apply Putnam's Corn Extractor. It works wonders, stops the pain quickly, the thick tissue is softened, and healing goes right to the heart of the corn. In a few hours the hard core is loosened and separated from the toe. Out comes the corn. Toe is left smooth—not a mark left. Use only Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, recommended by druggists and sold in 25c bottles by W. A. Erman.

NEW MEAT SHOP STARTS DEC. 31 GERMAN STREET

C. W. Spencer, who has been employed in the Ryan meat market on the south side, and who has been off duty for ten weeks, owing to a severe injury to his foot, sustained by a fall, is now able to be out through the use of a crutch and is arranging to open a meat and produce store at the rear of 17 German street next Tuesday, December 31.

Mr. Spencer understands the meat business and intends to conduct a first class shop. He is handicapped in getting started by his recent injury, but friends are taking a special interest in his welfare because of his misfortune.

An automatic telephone, No. 4396, has just been installed in the shop. Please note the number in your phone directory now and when in need of good meat or produce ring Auto 4396.

Closing day of grocery stock sale at Stapleton's Saturday. Prices slaughtered. 27d1.

ANNUAL REPORT OF COUNTY FAIR IS MADE PUBLIC

Receipts Nearly $2000 Greater Than in 1911—Society's Debt $6607—Here are the Figures.

The annual report of the auditing committee of the Licking County Agricultural society made public Friday shows that the amount collected in gate receipts at the recent fair was $1,951.45 greater than in 1911. The society's debt is now $6,607.60. During the past year the society expended over $2,000 in improving the buildings upon the fair ground.

The report does not show the amount contributed by the business men as that fund was collected and distributed by the Board of Trade committee of which Mr. W. F. Alward was chairman. This sum was over $1,000 and was used in advertising the fair over four counties. The report follows:

| RECEIPTS.                  |             |
|----------------------------|-------------|
| Cash on hand Jan. 1, 1912  | $ 92.43    |
| Gate admissions            | 6415.35     |

RAILROADS WOULD CHANGE THE BASIS OF MAIL CHARGES

New York, Dec. 27.—Declaring that the basis of mail pay for certain services is a survival of the days when mails were carried by stage coaches, the railroads of the country, represented by the committee on railway mail pay, has issued a statement protesting against methods practiced by the postoffice department.

The carriers claim that while the rates of pay for hauling mails are grossly inadequate to meet even operating expenses, certain methods of applying the existing basis of pay should be rectified. "This is especially necessary," the roads say, "in view of the tendency of the postoffice department to apply the system so as to look to the expense for railway transportation as the chief source of economy."

The law requires that mails shall be weighed not less frequently than every four years, and this weight shall be a basis for paying the railroads. The carriers claim that the postoffice department takes advantage of the law and refuses to order re-weighings except when compelled to do so by the expiration of the statutory limit. The statement says: "If thus happens that while the railroads are paid on the basis of a certain average daily weight, they are frequently carrying a much greater weight and with no compensation whatever for the increase in the weight. No railway would make a four years' contract to carry, for a definite sum, the unlimited output of any manufacturing plant, and if it attempted to do so, the contract would be void under the interstate commerce law. The terms of the mail contracts are substantially dictated by the postmaster general and by congress and the latter ought, in justice both to the railroads and to the government, to require the former to make annual weighings in order that the scheme of payment provided in the law may be fairly and accurately applied."

The railroads say that when cars especially equipped as traveling post-offices were first put on, congress provided for additional payments for the full cars so required, but when the practice of requiring portions of cars for the same purpose was inaugurated, no provision for paying for them was made, and this condition has never been corrected. Referring to this, the statement, concluding, says: "The injustice of this situation is recognized and the postmaster general asserts that it is a purely arbitrary discrimination and without logical basis."

FIRST THINGS

The first scientific expedition of Charles Darwin was commenced 81 years ago today, Dec. 27, 1831, when the British brig Beagle, Capt. Fitzroy, sailed for South America.

Charles Darwin, then a youngster, just out of Cambridge, was chosen as the naturalist of the expedition. For five years the Beagle voyaged in strange places seldom visited by white men, and in that period Darwin changed from a thoughtless youth, to whom the expedition had seemed something of a lark, to the observer of Nature whose long and patient investigations were to revolutionize the thought of the world, to upset every religion and to overthrow every previous scientific conception of human origin, life and destiny. The tremendous amount of data gathered by Darwin during the expedition of the Beagle supplied the raw material for the intellectual bombshells which later started the world—"The Origin of Species" and "The Descent of Man."

Historic Pharsalia.

It was on his way to the battlefield of Pharsalia that Caesar uttered the famous saying to the fishermen. He had come down to Brindisi to cross to Dyrrachium and, finding no galley, commanded the owner of a small sailing boat to put him across the Adriatic. On the voyage a violent storm occurred, and even the experienced mariners were terrified. But the great captain said: "Have no fear. You carry Caesar and his fortunes."

Musterole — Quick Relief! No Blister!

MUSTEROLE is a clean, white ointment made with the oil of mustard. It does all the work of the old-fashioned mustard plaster—does it better and does not blister. You do not have to bother with a cloth. You simply rub it on—and the pain is gone!

Millions of people have adopted MUSTEROLE in place of the mustard plaster.

You will find it in large hospitals.

Doctors and nurses use MUSTEROLE and recommend it to their patients.

They will gladly tell you what relief it gives from Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Croup, Stiff Neck, Asthma, Neuralgia, Congestion, Pleurisy, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Pains and Aches of the Back or Joints, Sprains, Sore Muscles, Bruises, Chills, Frosted Feet, Colds of the Chest (it prevents Pharyngitis).

At your druggist's in 25c and 50c jars, and a special large hospital size for $2.50.

Accept no substitute. If your druggist cannot supply you, send 25c or 50c to the Musterole Company, Cleveland, Ohio, and we will mail you a jar, postage prepaid.

"Musterole has helped me so much that I can hardly do without it."—Mrs. J. W. Thompson, San Antonio, Texas.

ON SECOND THOUGHT.

No two men exactly agree as to the value of a pair of jacks before the draw.

Of course, clear cut a lot of money, but Eph Wiley says he has noticed that most of the rich men smoke.

When a man disappears his family suspects foul play, but the police begin to look around for the woman.

If you wish to indefinitely retain the friendship of a man you must join his lodge.

It is Buck Kilby's observation that the man whose salary is larger than that of his neighbor seldom is a Socialist.

The really remarkable thing about the prodigal son is that he did not return to his father's house accompanied by his wife.

Tank Beverly is against the custom of giving three cheers. Tank says that, in most instances, one cheer is enough.

When a man is from a railroad town he always exaggerates the number of switch engines employed in his yards.

Many a fellow who prides himself upon being a prominent man is too prominent for his own good.

An Offended Painter.

Here is a story of Whistler's irascible treatment of Lady Meux, of whom he painted three portraits. It is told in Thomas Way's "Memoirs of Whistler."

"In view of the number of sittings Whistler wanted and his severe treatment of his models, I think it enormously to the credit of Lady Meux that she should have continued through two and started on the third portrait in which she was painted wearing a mantle of Russian sables. There was a story that, being one day not up to the mark, she sent her maid to stand for her, dressed in the sables. This so offended Whistler that promptly the maid's face appeared in place of that of the mistress, and, if the picture still exists, there it probably remains."

The Wants are interesting tonight.

A PLACE OF SILENCE for SEARCHING THE SOUL

THE RETREAT

EVERY Friday afternoon there are some two score men aboard the five o'clock boat for Staten Island, bound on an unusual undertaking. They are men of many different stations and walks of life. All are strangers to each other, and they do not meet until the end of their journey. They are going away for sixty-two hours of spiritual stock taking. Each is desirous of learning just what he is making and what he can make out of his life; what moral opportunities he is neglecting entirely or developing too little. To do this they are going to a place of peace and quiet, the House of Retreats at Mount Marrens, Fort Wadsworth, which was dedicated last June, and is the only retreat for laymen in America. The house is on the crest of the hill at the gate of New York and commands a wide view of sea and city.

Each week-end sees a different company. Except under unusual circumstances no man is permitted to enter the retreat more than once a year. Yet so deep is the impression that is made on the individual conscience that it is rare for a man to feel the need of a more frequent looking over spiritually. Except for fifteen minutes after the evening meal, when the ban is lifted, these men spend the time between six o'clock Friday afternoon and eight o'clock Monday morning without exchanging a word with each other. The rest of the time they battle silently with their difficulties, under the generalship of one skillful in such work, though obedient to the tactics of one greater than he, a famous fighter and a memorable commander, Ignatius Loyola.

Men of Varied Occupation.

Here are some of the occupations of the two score men who gathered at Mount Marrens last week to meditate upon the condition of their souls: An ex-clergyman, a wall polisher, a fire chief, a plumber, a Wall street magnate, a postman, three newspaper men, a driver for a grocer's wagon, a book publisher, a department store clerk, a doctor, several merchants and several lawyers. All these men returned voluntarily from the world for a brief space in order to find out, during a week-end of prayer, of meditation and silence, how to confront it more manfully. It was no ordinary sermon that they heard now and again from the spiritual director. There are no heads nodding sleepily while he talks. Every one listens with strained attention. As one man said: "You seem to feel the thumbs of God at work on the clay of your soul."

Although retreats have been part of the church's work for centuries, it was only in 1882 that a definite plan was adopted so their benefits could be made available for laymen. In that year Father Henry of the Jesuit order established in Belgium the first House of Retreats for laymen. The movement spread to Spain, France, Portugal and South America. The second House of Retreats in England was opened last April, about eight miles from the center of London. The first retreat for laymen was established in America about three years ago at Fordham. Later, during the summer, it was at Kayser's island, on the sound. The latter part of last year the Mount Marrens property on Staten Island was secured, and was opened September 8, 1911. It was dedicated as a permanent House of Retreats June 16, of this year.

No Doctrinal Instruction. A retreat is not made up of preaching or doctrinal instruction. At Mount Marrens Father Terence J. Shealy, who is in charge of the movement, gives frequent talks upon the various phases of the spiritual life. They are not doctrinal expositions for any one who believes in the fundamentals of Christianity is welcomed. They apply largely to business ethics, the standard of honesty and justice being applied to every phase of daily work. They are earnest est exhortations that tend to make a man recast his soul, to arouse his conscience, to make him look within himself and realize what he is doing with his life. Each of these is followed by a period of meditation. The men may retire to their rooms or they may wander about the grounds—there are twenty acres of giant trees and shady lawns—or they may sit in the library where there are many volumes waiting to help them still further along the road they have set out to travel.

The day begins early for those in this retreat. They rise at six o'clock. Meditation and a brief religious service precede breakfast, which is followed by meditation and reflection in common at nine a. m. At eleven the spiritual director gives one of his searching talks, then follows—in silence always—an examination of the conscience. After the midday meal there is another address from Father Shealy and another period of meditation. Only for the quarter of an hour after supper is any general conversation allowed.

Audit Books of Life. "We apply our conscience to the common duties of the day," says Father Shealy—a fine, stalwart, earnest, sensitive, humorous man, an Irishman of the best type. "In the light of the law of conscience we examine our lives, our social relationships, our business dealings. We audit our books. We realize our obligations anew. As we can see our faces in the mirror our meditations and the spiritual exercises enable us to look into our souls. We study the science of right living.

"The rule of silence gives play to a new and tremendous activity of mind and heart busied with the basic relations of human life. The appeal is to the whole man, and its object is to give special strength as well as light for the upbuilding of the character. It is, in fact, the awakening of the mind to new meanings in human relationship; the making of a new beginning in the soul's journey to God under the stimulus of sympathetic direction.

"Conscience is becoming more and more divorced from professional and business responsibility. But life and the things of life are a trust of which each man must one day render an account of his stewardship."

Combat Social Unrest.

The primary purpose of the retreat is, of course, to mend and strengthen souls; but there is still another side upon which the spiritual director's exhortations touch with emphasis. The growth of social unrest and anti-religious social theories in the United States has been a source of much apprehension to the clergy. Socialism is growing rapidly, and the church is combating positively and actively the features of the Socialistic propaganda that are directed against doctrinal and moral teachings. As a result, part of the work of the Laymen's League for Retreats and Social Studies, under whose auspices the retreat at Mount Marrens is conducted, has established regular courses of systematic study of social questions and modern apologetics. These are particularly a part of the School of Social Studies, at 140 Nassau street, New York, but the same questions are touched upon impressively during the retreats at each week end.

The subject of Socialism is dealt with exhaustively from the Catholic viewpoint and with especial reference to the interests of the workingman. The subject is treated constructively and is approached with a scrupulous spirit of fairness and sympathy with the good intentions of those who are striving to better the workingman's lot. The particular aim, however, is to demonstrate that in Christian principles may be found a remedy for present day social evils, and that not merely is Socialism not the only remedy but that it is no remedy at all.

No Fixed Charges Made.

There is no fixed charges for those who spend their three days in this retreat on Staten Island, although it is customary for retreatants to make an offering of $5 for their board and room and other expenses during that time. This sum, of course, does not come anywhere near the actual cost of the material services rendered, but many of the rich men who have visited the retreat have been so generous in their contributions that the work has been carried on without much financial worry. Now and then Father Shealy says he finds a check for $1,000 or more in one of the envelopes of a Monday morning after the retreatants have gone back to their workaday world. No one, however, is excluded because he can make no offering at all in recompense. All that is necessary is simply to arrange privately with the director, who wishes it most clearly understood that the man with no money is as welcome at the retreat as the man who can contribute largely to its support.

In Beautiful Spot.

The House of Retreats is on Finger-board road, at Fort Wadsworth. The grounds form part of what was known as Fox Hills, a beautiful undulating slope in the most accessible part of the island. The original owner of the property had a keen sense of its artistic worth. He was a man of great wealth, and is said to have spent a total of $800,000 in building the great mansion and on the improvement of the 20 acres or grounds about it during the many years that he lived there. Walks of granite meander through upland and lowland and lead to unexpected views of the sea and of the rolling country inland. There are tennis courts and groves, conservatories and grape arbors. For some years after the owner's death the place was used as a summer boarding house and fell more or less into disrepair. The grounds were lapsing back into their natural state when the property passed into the hands of the Laymen's league and the retreat was established there. Since then the place has been restored to most of its original beauty. There is nothing like it on Staten Island and few estates near New York that can compare with it. The house is imposing with its great staircases, its wonderful carved panels and its huge fireplaces.

The place was renamed "Mount Marrens" in honor of the Spanish town of Marrens, where St. Ignatius of Loyola, the founder of the Jesuit order, wrote his famous spiritual exercises. It was this book that introduced the retreat plan of campaign into the war for the conquest of souls.—New York Press.

CAKES PRODUCED BY ARTISTS

Many of These Made for English Weddings Will Weigh as Much as Twenty-five Pounds.

Although the wedding cake of England has not fairly like bliss about it, it will hold its own with any cake in the world. With its snow-white ornaments of the purest sugar, it presents a very beautiful appearance when complete, but it is not generally known that it takes over two years before the cake itself, minus the almond and sugar icing, is fully matured.

According to a wedding cake expert, it is the custom of the moment at society weddings to ornament the cakes with an eye to lightness, and for this purpose the tiers are placed on Corinthian pillars, between which are small doves on shells. Festoons or closely clustered ivy leaves ornament the base and the structure, which often runs up to 84 inches, is surmounted with sugar flowers and leaves.

Some of the cakes weigh as much as 25 pounds, and the price goes up to $300 or so, although the modern wedding cake can be purchased at as low as $250. In military weddings the decoration often runs on lines suitable to the regiment, and for navy ceremonies small dreadnoughts and anchors in sugar are the chosen adornment. If the family has a crest and motto it is worked into the scheme.

The latest fashions in wedding favors include crackers which are filled with wedding mottoes for distribution among the guests. These crackers are larger than the Christmas varieties, and they are tied with flowing white satin ribbons. Bags in fancy paper filled with rose leaves for strewing along the bride's path are an innovation which are favored this season, and in place of the rices and confetti which used to be thrown at the bride and bridegroom there are quaint little shoes, cupid's, horseshoes and wedding bells carried out in silver.—London Graphic.

Be it ordained by the Council of the City of Newark, State of Ohio, That it is deemed necessary by the Council of the City of Newark, State of Ohio, to issue and sell a bond of the City of Newark, Ohio, in the sum of $1304.04 for the purpose of paying the costs and expenses of extending Norton Avenue in the City of Newark, Ohio.

Section 2. That said bond of said city be issued in the sum of $1304.04 for the purpose aforesaid; that said bond shall be dated December 28, 1912 and shall mature and become payable on the 28th day of December, 1916; said bond shall bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum, payable semi-annually on the 1st days of June and December in each year and interest coupons shall be attached thereto. Said bond shall be payable at the office of the Sinking Fund Trustees of the City of Newark, Ohio, in the City of Newark, Ohio.

Section 3. That said bond shall be first offered at public sale to the highest bidder at the office of the Sinking Fund Trustees of the City of Newark, Ohio, and if the said bond is not sold at said public sale, it shall be sold at private sale to the highest bidder at the office of the Sinking Fund Trustees of the City of Newark, Ohio, and if the said bond is not sold at said private sale, it shall be sold at public sale to the highest bidder at the office of the Sinking Fund Trustees of the City of Newark, Ohio.

Section 4. That the following lots and lands shall be assessed for said improvement as above determined: All lots and lands bounding and butting upon the proposed improvement, including the cost of such assessment, shall be paid by the owner of such property in the manner provided by law.

Section 5. That the following lots and lands shall be assessed for said improvement as above determined: All lots and lands bounding and butting upon the proposed improvement, including the cost of such assessment, shall be paid by the owner of such property in the manner provided by law.

Section 6. That this ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after the earliest period allowed by law. Passed December 16th, 1912. HARRY ROSSEL, President of Council. Attest: HAROLD G. FRANKLIN, Clerk of Council.

Approved by the Mayor this 18th day of December, 1912. F. M. SWARTZ, Mayor.

Ordinance No. 2239

Determining to proceed with the improvement of Tuscarawas Street from first alley east of Cedar Street to the east line of Lot No. 3403, Penney's Addition, by constructing a sanitary and drainage sewer therein.

Be it ordained by the Council of the City of Newark, State of Ohio, that three fourths of all the members elected thereto concurring:

Section 1. That it is hereby determined to proceed with the improvement of Tuscarawas Street from the first alley east of Cedar Street to the east line of Lot No. 3403, Penney's Addition, by constructing a sanitary and drainage sewer therein, in accordance with Resolution passed on the 15th day of July, 1912 in accordance with the plans, specifications, estimates and profiles hereto approved and now on file in the office of the Director of Public Service.

Section 2. That all claims for damages resulting therefrom shall be judicially inquired into after the conclusion of the proposed improvement.

Section 3. That the whole cost of said improvement, less one-fifth thereof, and the cost of interest thereon, shall be assessed by the foot frontage upon the following described lots and lands, to-wit: All lots and lands bounding and butting upon the proposed improvement, which said lots and

Disappeared

By J. BERRY CRAPO

Herman Gottlieb, charged with issuing false indentures to the amount of $2,000,000, sailed yesterday from New York on the steamer Aloric, bound for New York. His destination is New York. Arrest him and hold him waiting extradition papers. He stands six feet two, has red hair, light complexion and weighs 200 pounds. Supplement description by mail.

The above cablegram was sent from Berlin to the police of New York and received five days before the Aloric was due in New York. A wireless was also sent to the captain of the ship asking if any one answering the description was on board his vessel. The first and second cabin passengers were looked over and those in the steerage were lined up and examined critically. No person answering the description was found among either the first or second class passengers. Some of the steerage passengers reported that a tall man apparently weighing something less than 200 pounds, but with black hair and olive complexion, had been among them, but had disappeared.

The wireless was received by Captain Davidson of the Aloric when the steamer was in midocean. She had not touched at any port. She had passed Gibraltar in broad daylight in the middle of the strait, and it would have been impossible for any one to leave her even if he had had the wherewithal to float himself without being seen. Gottlieb did not reappear on the Aloric and when she reached New York he was not found aboard.

What had become of him? It is true that a man answering the description given of Gottlieb sailed from New York on the Aloric, and he was the man the request from Berlin referred to. But his name was not Gottlieb, nor was he a German citizen. He was a Russian Pole named Blamisky, wanted by the czar of Russia to work in the Siberian mines. An officer of the secret Russian police had traced him to Berlin, and it was he who had done the forging, sending messages in the name of the Berlin authorities.

The usual passage of ships between Gibraltar and New York is to the southward of the island Madeira. On the 10th of November, 19—, a yacht bearing the name Nihil on her stern left Funchal, the principal port of that island, and steered eastward. She had made some fifty knots when several sails appeared on the horizon, and all turned their bows toward the Nihil. When they came near together the captain of one of them signalled that the Aloric was in latitude 30 degrees 20 minutes, longitude west of Greenwich 12 degrees 45 minutes, and would pass Madeira about fifty miles south of Funchal at 12 o'clock that night. Whereupon the captain of the Nihil signalled the little fleet to steer by different courses to a point south of Funchal fifty miles and east of the Funchal meridian thirty miles.

That same night the tall steerage passenger on the Aloric, after all except the ship's watch had turned in, stole along by a route that would render him unseen toward the afterdeck. His size since he had turned in had increased so that his girth measured some twelve inches more than before and proportionately on the other parts of his body. He carried two tin cans—one hermetically sealed, the other opening by a spring upon pressing on a button. Both these cans were attached to his body by a small chain.

Blamisky reached the stern of the ship unobserved and found no one there. The night was clear and the sea was smooth, a long swell only passing from southeast to northwest. The fugitive looked up to the stars, muttered a prayer and, mounting the taffrail jumped over into the ocean.

He sank but a few feet for under his clothes was an india rubber encasement which he had blown full of air. He took no action whatever, merely watching the lights of the receding ship. Though his escape depended upon her leaving him alone upon boundless waters, he saw her recede with a kind of awe. An hour later when the last glimmer had gone out he pressed the button on one of his tin boxes and took out an ordinary can opener, leaving in the box some food and a bottle of water. With the instrument, holding the other tin box above his head, he cut a hole in the tin, took out a rocket and a patent cigar lighter. Holding the rocket in his hand, he lighted the fuse with the latter. The rocket went high in the air.

He watched eagerly for a response, but none appeared. In half an hour he sent up another rocket, then another till he had fired six rockets. After that a breeze sprang up, the waves freshened and his remaining rockets were drenched with sea water. But the last one he fired brought a response. A thin streak of light appeared perpendicularly on the horizon just before day broke.

Within twenty minutes a sail appeared from out the gloom of receding night, bearing nearly straight toward the man in the water. When he saw that she would pass him far to the south he took from his pocket a metal ball, moved a slide on its surface and threw it as far from him as he could. In a few minutes there was an explosion. The coming vessel heeded it and turned toward him. In another ten minutes he was taken aboard one of the boats that had been dispatched by the Nihil.

Such is the escape of one of Russia's principal revolutionists. But he had many assistants.

The man who has no enemies is six feet under ground.

TO CLEAR CRIMINAL DOCKET

After Next Grand Jury Reports 100 Cases Will Confront New Prosecutor—Court News.

Work on the clearing of the criminal docket will commence on February 10, when Judge T. B. Fulton will officially commence his duties, and will continue until some disposition has been made of each of the seventy-six cases which Prosecuting Attorney Howard Jones and Judge Fulton inherit from the present incumbents of the judiciary. A conference was held this morning for the consideration of criminal matters and at its conclusion Prosecuting Attorney Jones declared that he intended to get the criminal docket cleared at the earliest possible moment. With the grand jury in session after January 8, he expects enough indictments returned to bring the total of cases pending up to at least a hundred. Two weeks of pleas in equity will follow the report of the grand jury, and this will bring the court to the consideration of civil jury cases until February 10. The criminal cases should continue until March 4, when the circuit court will convene for a four week's term.

The cases now on the criminal docket, according to this morning's review, are as follows:

Ernest Terwilliger, at large; murder. Oscar Wildman, not arrested; breaking house in day time. Key Goldenberg, not arrested; grand larceny. Barney Sansin bond forfeited; non-support. Frinney, not arrested; failure to provide. Jerry Morath, not arrested; failure to provide. Jas. R. Baker, not arrested.

Two defendants confessing judgment and a third allowing judgment to be taken by default in the court of Squire Mossman, justice of the peace for Madison township, marked the apparent collapse of what seems to have been a concerted effort in that region to oppose the collection of the road tax.

The road superintendent brought the actions in the court of the Squire. One of the cases, in which the jury found for the plaintiff has been brought to common pleas court on appeal from the decision found in Squire Mossman's court.

The road assessment is a statutory tax and it is understood that other actions will be brought by the road superintendent to compel its payment.

A New Year's House Party

By JOHN R. MORRISON

We were two boys and three girls in our family, the youngest fifteen, the eldest twenty-six, when we gave the New Year's house party that proved a turning point in my life. Every room in the house was occupied, some of them by three persons. We had scarcely got together when we began a series of practical jokes on one another, at which the girls were far more adept than the boys. The very first night the sheets in every fellow's bed were scotched, and the next day at luncheon there were cream cakes on the table filled with cotton provided by the girls. One fellow swallowed his cake, cotton and all, rather than confess himself stung.

We sat up so late nights and some of us were stirring so early in the morning that we were ready to fall asleep at any moment. One evening when playing the game of "twenty questions" I was sent into another room while the others chose something for me to guess. There was no light in the room where I waited, but there was an easy chair. I sat down in the chair and fell asleep.

I was awakened by a kiss. I grabbed a girl, but she got away from me, though only after a fierce struggle. When I had once lost her it was not easy to find her, though the rustling of her skirts was a disadvantage to her, while my greater weight, rendering my tread heavier, was constantly betraying me. She dodged me for some time, when all became quiet. Then suddenly I heard the door open and close. Since the adjoining room was also dark I knew that the others had turned off the lights to enable the girl I was after to escape. The escape having been effected, I went to the door to go out. I found it locked.

It was some ten minutes before it was opened, and I joined the others, the room having been relighted. I cast my eyes from one girl to another with a view to discovering who had kissed me. The first girl I looked at had a scratch on her nose. But the second also had a scratch, and the third. In deed, every girl was scratched. I looked at the fellows and saw that they were all laughing at me.

Now, among our guests there was one girl for whom my heart had begun to beat. I would have given a kingdom if I had had it for proof that Maria had done the kissing. Whoever had done it had doubtless been dared. Whether my preference for Maria had been noticed by the other girls and when I was found asleep she had been chosen to play the joke on me I didn't know. If she had done the kissing she certainly showed no evidence of the fact—that is, any more than the rest of the girls—a scratched nose. But there was one thing that led me to suspect her. While every other girl in the room was keyed up to the highest pitch of mischief, their eyes dancing, their lips, cheeks, every other feature smiling, Maria seemed simply unconcerned.

At 2 a. m. I went to bed no wiser as to the identity of the kisser than before. But the next morning after having dressed, noticing that I needed to change my handkerchief, I jerked it from the outside pocket of my coat and heard something hard on the floor. Stooping, I picked up a stickpin.

It at once occurred to me that during the scuffle of the evening before the pin had fallen from the lady's apparel, probably from about the neck, and caught on my handkerchief. Unfortunately it was a very inexpensive article with an imitation pearl for a head and did not identify any particular girl. I realized the importance of keeping my find a secret. Going down to breakfast, I found that three different girls wore pins that were duplicates of the one I possessed. They were the most likely to be suspected, and among them was Maria. Doubtless if there had been enough such articles to go round every girl would have worn a stickpin as well as a scratched nose. By and by it occurred to me that when the pin was in transit from the girl to my pocket it had made the scratch on her nose.

The problem was now narrowed down to three girls, for doubtless the girl who had done the kissing was among those who wore pins. It seemed to me that I must make her betray herself or the victory would be with the girls. I sat down to the breakfast table, ignoring my find. But while the girls were rinsing their dainty fingers in their finger bowls I said:

"I have found something that belonged to the girl who kissed me last night."

Every girl expressed by her behavior a keen interest in what I said except Maria, who took advantage of rinsing her fingers to bend over the little glass bowl before her. I made up my mind that I was getting "warm," as the children say in hide and seek, and concluded on a bold stroke. I continued:

"You may think that a little stickpin

she lost when trying to get away from me is what I refer to. It is not."

Every girl stopped smiling and looked serious. I could see Maria wince. "The girl who kissed me I love," I went on, "and I am ready to proclaim it here before you all."

I fixed my gaze on Maria. A hot flame sprang into her cheeks. To conceal it she turned away and presently threw up the sponge by covering her face with her napkin.

The next year Maria and I entertained the same party in our own house.

The Better Part of Valor.

Nobody ever called in question the courage of the early Spanish settlers of California, but there seems to have been at least one man among their descendants who held discretion to be the better part of valor. A certain Don Andreas was interviewed by his superior officer on the eve of an engagement with the enemy and was warned that the American was a very different foe from the Indian or the Mexican and that courage should not be pushed to rashness in an encounter with him.

"Have no fear, general," was the response of the intrepid caballero. "I would far rather that history should record from where I fled than where I fell."

The general's mind was probably relieved of anxiety concerning the fate of at least one individual in his command by this reply.

Black Under the Eyes Explained.

"In the north country"—so goes the story in "Sun Babies," by Cornelia Sorabja—"in the month of Kartik is worshiped by the women folks the great and terrible god Bhishma. Lighted lamps must be placed at the cross-roads of the village, under the sacred fig tree, at the shrine of Shiva, and one little lighted lamp is sent adrift on a raft in the village tank. When the lamps have burned low it is good to rub the black from the wicks under the eyes. It keeps away the evil eye. So that is the reason to this day we women put the black beneath the eyes."

Natural Ear Trumpets.

It has been ascertained that the spiral horn of a wild sheep, when so placed that the ear is in the axis of the coil, makes the direction from which the ticking of a watch comes more easily discernible. Since the ear of the sheep is surrounded by the horn it is inferred that the latter acts as an ear trumpet, not improving the hearing for distant sounds, but disclosing the direction of a sound. This would be useful in enabling the sheep to ascertain the exact points whence sounds come when there is a mist or fog covering its feeding grounds.—Exchange.

Carlyle's Way.

Carlyle appears in a brief reminiscence from the pen of Percy Fitzgerald thus: The thing with Carlyle was to send out for a long churchwarden (a clay pipe) and a screw of tobacco, which put him in great good humor. He talked to his plate, as you might say. If anybody said anything from which he dissented you would hear him murmuring, "Oh, the poor old fool; a regular pair audit fool!"

The Mean Is Golden.

"How did Jones come to fail?" asked Binks. "Oh, he had no confidence in himself," replied Jinks. "And what caused Brown to fail?" asked Binks. "He was too confident," replied Jinks.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Fair Proof.

"I wonder if she cares for me at all?" "Has she given you no sign?" "One. Once I saw her setting the clock back when I came to call."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE BIRTHDAY CALENDAR.
*****

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY.

Henceforth your own or of some one dear to you, will trouble you no more. If you are associated with others refrain from harsh judgment for your own ways may need a little improvement.

Those who today will be afraid to acknowledge their own errors and will lose friends and money, rather than change their opinionated ways. When you are so afraid from a vision should be forced upon them, but all should be explained to them. Unless broadly educated in this matter they may become prejudiced to the extent of insanity.

Hands sometimes find their way, even the holy hands of matrimony.

SEE THE SHOW WINDOWS

Both large show windows contain Coats, Suits and Furs which are in this gigantic sale. Each garment has large ticket showing the original price and the sale price and they have been selected with the idea of showing the variety in the sale. See them if you can—there are some things you'll find it hard to believe.

THESE REDUCTIONS ARE NECESSARY

No Garment will be sent out on approval.
No Garment will be held without a deposit.
Owing to the extreme price reductions a nominal charge will be made for alterations.
Please don't ask us to rush your Suit or Coat—we must fill all orders in the sequence in which they are received.

Annual Garment Clearance Sale Starts Saturday Morning

Biggest Values Of The Whole Year In Women's And Misses' Coats, Suits, Dresses And Furs

A desperate resolve quickly formed goes into execution tomorrow the very minute the store is opened. Every winter garment we have in the store will be on the bargain racks and the price put down to a figure that some lucky woman will be glad to have it for.

The backward season makes this drastic price reduction sale necessary. If it hadn't been for the very mild weather during the past two months, there would be no need of this sale. But now within a few weeks of inventory we find our garment stocks heavier than they should be. In the aggregate there is an overplus of many thousands of dollars worth of stylish new winter garments. Good merchandising demands that we reduce our lines and you may choose tomorrow.
